Peter Lemesurier

Peter Lemesurier, a former Cambridge linguist and professional translator, and widely regarded as the world's leading English-language Nostradamus expert, is the author of numerous works dedicated to solving the world's great mysteries.

He has written some ten books on Nostradamus, including the best-selling Nostradamus Encyclopedia of 1997 and the authoritative The Unknown Nostradamus and Nostradamus: The Illustrated Prophecies of 2003. His books have been translated into some dozen languages, and a Google search yields some 18,000 references to him and his work. Born in 1936, and a Cambridge MA in Modern and Mediaeval Languages, he has enjoyed a varied experience of life as a professional musician, teacher, translator, author, trimaraner and jet pilot.

He has been invited as a repeat guest by the town of Salon-de-Provence (Nostradamus' hometown) to lecture in French on the seer, and has officially researched and appeared in numerous TV films and radio programs, including productions by the Discovery Channel, the History Channel, the National Geographic Channel and UK's Channel 4. He is also an established editor of the English, French and German Wikipedia articles on Nostradamus.
