The Alien Abduction Files

By Kathleen Marden and Denise Stoner

The abduction of humans by extraterrestrial visitors is the most perplexing aspect of UFO related phenomena and has, unfortunately, met with a wall of skepticism by many members of the scientific community. The problem lies in the failure of skeptics to examine the preponderance of evidence. It is easy to attribute abduction phenomena to the imaginings of fantasy prone individuals, sleep hallucinations, the misuse of hypnosis, and other psychological explanations. In the absence of a piece of alien technology that is clearly extraterrestrial, many scientists have turned their backs on what might be the greatest discovery of all time.

A combined forty-four years of research and investigation has convinced this book's authors, Kathleen Marden and Denise Stoner, that the evidence is overwhelming. Some accounts of alien visitation are real. Kathleen is among other things, the niece of Betty and Barney Hill, whose 1961 UFO abduction stirred worldwide interest. She is the author of two books with the renowned UFO researcher Stanton T. Friedman, M.Sc. Denise takes time from her busy schedule as an abduction investigator and administrator to host private meetings for abductees.

Marden and Stoner present two highly significant cases of multiple abduction that are virtually unknown in UFO literature. Yet the information presented is earth shattering and highly compelling. Missing time, multiple witnesses, serial abductions, and previously unknown information in UFO literature is presented in detail. Despite some misgivings about the public's reaction, Denise Stoner and her husband have decided to finally go public with their story. Jennie, whose highly significant multigenerational alien abduction story is told by Kathleen, has still not been publicly identified, because the fear of public embarrassment waits in the wings to exert a strong hold on a person's decision to step forward with the truth.

In each case, the abduction experiencers were missing from their natural environment following a close encounter with an anomalous flying object. Both arrived at their destination hours later than anticipated. There was no prosaic explanation for their missing time. There is documented physiological evidence and eyewitness testimony that gives additional credence to the women's reports. One has undergone psychological evaluations and personality screenings that clearly place her in the “normal” range of functioning. Both have medical records to back up their statements.

In addition to this, the authors tell the personal stories of several abduction experiencers, who like Denise and “Jennie” have endured astonishing contact experiences with what by all accounts are extraterrestrial beings. Most have conscious memories of a close encounter with unconventional craft and observing non-human entities prior to an abduction. Sometimes their neighbors have witnessed strange lights near some of their homes. When they realized the magnitude of what was occurring in their lives, many became fear driven, and certain places, objects, sounds, and lights brought on sharp recall of unearthly environments. Some have a strong desire to “tell all” about this nagging reality that has disturbed so much of their lives.

A very important addition to the UFO abduction literature is the data (provided here for the first time in any book) concerning the results of the detailed survey “The UFO Abduction Experiencer” conducted recently by Marden and Stoner. The results indicate that abduction experiencers seem to share a number of characteristics and experiences not generally shared by non-abductees who were also questioned as a control group.

Furthermore, the authors have taken the courageous step of discussing the possibility that the reported experiences are the result of something other than alien intervention such as out of body experiences, psi activity, sleep paralysis, hallucinatory states, personality disorders, dreams, confabulation and other explanations put forth by the skeptical UFO community. Now you have a chance to travel into that night sky, to go beyond wondering and experience for yourself the reality and spirituality of life beyond our world.
