THIS BOOK IS FROM THE FUTURE

By Marie D. Jones & Larry Flaxman

Headline: The Story of Time

Paragraph: What is time and what do we know and not understand about the arrow of time? Why must our human experience always be from past to future, and is there any evidence of the possibility that we can step out of the path of time's arrow, and go back to the past, forward into the future and discard linear time?

Headline: The Present and Future of Time Travel

Paragraph: What is the most cutting edge time travel research going on today, including the recent neutrino experiments at the LHC, and experiments to possibly prove string theory, wormholes and parallel universes? How will this help make the case for time travel? Are we closer to building a time machine than we were when H.G. Wells first wrote about the concept?

Headline: The Mysterious World of Mental Time Traveling

Paragraph: How does time travel already occur within the constructs of the human mind and consciousness? Are we already capable of traveling through time mentally even if we cannot yet do so physically? Explore the more "paranormal" aspects of time travel and déjà vu, dreams, out of body, precognition, remote viewing, apporting, and time slips and time shifts.
