

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

David M. Rountree

David was born in 1954 in Suffolk, Virginia, but moved to Delray Beach, Florida, in the fall of 1963, where he first became interested in the paranormal. He participated in the exploration of his first "haunted house" at the age of 17 in Boynton Beach, Florida. He received his B.S.E.E. in 1973 while serving in the Air Force, in microwave technology. In November of 2007 he received his Masters in Electronic Engineering in Digital Signal Processing. In 1978 he was certified as an audio engineer and in 1985 as an acoustic engineer. David is a professional member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Audio Engineering Society, the International Frequency Sensor Association, and is also affiliated with the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers. He was recently invited to join the Mathematics Association of America.

David began his research into the paranormal professionally in 1976, and has experimented with both scientific as well as metaphysical techniques in his study of unexplained occurrences. In 1992 David formed Scientific Paranormal Investigative Research Information and Technology (S.P.I.R.I.T.), a research organization dedicated to the search for the cause of paranormal phenomena. Since 1998 his focus has been EVP research. In 2005 David successfully linked electromagnetic fields as the primary source of EVPs. His EVP research led to the development of his Wormhole Theory and the Mutiverse Theory concerning the source for paranormal events. Additionally he is studying the Mechanics of Mediumship as well as researching therapeutic treatments for mediums suffering from symptoms of fibromyalgia. David is a board member of the Professional Society for the Advancement of Paranormal Research and is currently serving as Acting Executive Director. He is the Director of the S.P.I.R.I.T. Laboratory, Co-Director of New Jersey Paranormal Resource Group, Co-Founder of New Jersey Paranormal Investigative Coalition, a professional member of the Rhine Research Center, life member of the New Jersey Ghost Hunter's Society, member of the International Paranormal Investigators, and a member of the International Paranormal Research Association.

In 1976 David's deceased Grandfather began appearing in his dreams telling him stories. These stories were lessons handed down from the Native American side of his family. David visited a medium who advised him to keep a journal because she felt that his grandfather was preparing him to enter the spiritual life of his ancestors.

Later that summer, David moved from Biloxi, Mississippi to Hawthorne, Florida. He began to study aspects of the paranormal from both a scientific and a metaphysical point of view. He began reading the works of Carlos Casteneda and found parallels with the stories and his dreams. Armed with this confirmation of knowledge, he continued to practice the lessons he had been taught by his spiritual grandfather.

In the summer of 1978, David spent time in the Dakotas, searching for his identity. In his wanderings he met a medicine man called Black Eagle or Wanblee Sapa, who not only taught him, but sent him on a spirit journey to find his native name.
