*The Crystal Skull of Compassion:
Daikomyo-zo Chenrezi*

Klaire D. Roy

The Crystal Skull of Compassion— Daikomyo-zo Chenrezi, written under the guidance of Tibetan Master Djwhal Khul, sheds light on the crystal skulls, confirms the truth of their existence, traces their provenance and explains their influence. It demystifies their ties to humans, who have not yet learned to properly utilize their full potential.

The thirteen skulls of crystal have been in existence since the conception of this new world within which we evolve. The crystal skulls came to us principally from three major solar systems: Orion, Gemini and Canis Major, which includes Sirius.

Each skull is related to a specific energy and is guided by a Master from the skull's planet of origin. A Master Skull takes seat at the Center and presides over the twelve other skulls, according to the epochs and epochal time era with which they are affiliated. To this day, the Master Skull serves as a primary receptor and generates the energy required to help humanity cognize the essential steps, or realize the keynote measures to be taken, for its evolution. Each crystal skull has its own unique frequency that can be attuned to those of the other twelve skulls.

In the time of Atlantis, the thirteen crystal skulls were already among us. They were buried in places specially chosen to ensure their protection. These "hiding places" corresponded with Power Centers essential to the planet's survival.

Eleven of the crystal skulls are currently inactive, but two have emerged to ensure continuity. One (Daikomyo-zo Chenrezi) made it possible for the Mayas to prosper, while the other (Mitchell-Hedges) helped the pharaohs achieve power.

One of the crystal skulls' main functions is to foster the expansion of the role of our lower mind to make us wiser, stronger and more compassionate so that we may one day know another aspect of God's reflection in the manifested world.

Another function of the crystal skulls is to foster contact with Beings on other planets. Use of the higher mind will far exceed our present-day imaginings and we will direct its influence to help us surpass our current limitations.

The quartz from which Daikomyo-zo Chenrezi was sculpted was brought to our planet by what we could call “vibratory” transport over 25,000 years ago in order to merge its vibrations with the energy in the crystal skulls already here. This new name is the twelfth of twenty names that have been or will be attributed to this skull throughout the various epochs and eras of our planet’s evolution. The present name will help liberate a new aspect programmed in this skull, one associated with the need for compassion in healing. The Daikomyo-zo Chenrezi Skull comes from South America. It is suffused with an energy of Love that it must share with the entire planet. This Love will make it possible to heal physical, emotional and psychological wounds inflicted in past lives.

The Mitchell-Hedges Skull comes from the constellation of Canis Major and works mainly in the area of technology. This crystal skull was discovered in the early 20th century in a Mayan temple in Belize in South America. This skull set the stage for the dawn of the Age of Aquarius. The role of the Daikomyo-zo Chenrezi Skull on the other hand, is to sustain humanity throughout this era awash with illusions of all kinds. Its Compassion will help man better integrate the experiences of the next millennium.

These crystal skulls do not belong to one particular civilization but are among us to serve all of humanity. As none of them will be controlled by a single civilization, they will each reveal their secrets at the appropriate place and time. As for Native Americans, the skulls are grateful for the relationship they established in the preceding era. These peoples, who share a common ancestry with native Tibetans, faithfully guarded the skulls and inculcated respect for these objects of power.

The pyramids of Giza sustain a close link with the crystal skulls as they depict Orion’s Belt. The skulls were utilized to channel the energy required to construct the pyramids of Giza, built by the hands of man but shaped energetically by Beings from elsewhere imbued with a Wisdom greater than ours.

There will come a time when the crystal skulls will be known and respected. A few centuries will have to elapse before this becomes possible, as humanity must become more spiritual and less materialistic. The effective use of these crystal skulls calls for skill and dexterity sustained by Wisdom, Love and Intelligence. To respond to the crystal skulls’ call, we must be intuitive and willing to explore the unknown. We also need to have sharpened our intelligence so that we can differentiate true from false.

The crystal skulls are Guides to be consulted with wisdom and discernment. Tap into their energy, enter their universe, and see your life in a new light!

... One day, the inhabitants of the Earth will awaken, and the entire Universe will quake, a passionate new and more luminous era will dawn. As the artisans of the future, we are in no small part responsible for the evolution of our solar system...
